National Day of Prayer – Thursday May 6th

In late 1952 Congress proclaimed a joint resolution for a National Day of Prayer. President Harry Truman proclaimed it to be observed on July 4, 1952. President Ronald Reagan changed it to the first Thursday in May. Since our country's beginning, presidents and national officials have called for national days of prayer and thanksgiving. The Continental Congress in 1775, George Washington in 1795, John Adams in 1798 and Abraham Lincoln in 1863 to mention a few. Please take a few moments on Thursday and lift your voice in prayer for our nation asking for God's guidance and blessing.
